

PELOPONNESE SELF-GUIDED

Epicenter of Greek myths and legends

DESCRIPTION

Inhabited for millennia, the Peloponnese is the source of many of Greece's most beloved mythological figures and real life heroes, from Jason and his Argonauts to King Leonidis of Sparta. No wonder Lonely Planet named the Peloponnese the #1 European destination in 2016.

You will visit the region's most legendary sites as you ascend mountain roads, hug gorges, follow seacoast roads and overnight in memorable accommodations where the hosts make you feel proud to have arrived by bike. Most of the route consists of rural back roads. Like Crete, the Peloponnese terrain beckons the seasoned cyclist. The highest elevation is 2985 feet 909 meters, on a long cycling day, 107 km 66 miles, from Nafplio to Dimitsana. If those numbers are within your ability, you will love pedaling across the Peloponnese.

Before or after your self-guided biking tour, we recommend booking the four day, four night Athens Add-on that immerses you in the culture of Athens and the Attica region with exciting activities: Historic Central Athens bike tour (90% traffic free), Acropolis & Acropolis Museum with professional guide, Temple of Poseidon coastal cycling, Attica wine tasting, Temple of Artemis.

ITINERARY

Arrive at least one day early to Athens to test ride the bikes.

During the tour leave your luggage in the hotel and it will be transferred to your next destination.

The itinerary below is standard, but can be changed to add days or destinations. For example, Vytina or Kalavrita are precious places where we encourage you to consider staying two nights.

Day 1: Corinth

Meet in the morning at Piraeus port. We give you the bikes and take your luggage. Start with a ferry to Salamina island, the site where in 480 BC the Greeks trounced the Persians in the famous Battle of Salamis. Cycle across the island (13 km, 8 miles) to a second ferry to get back on the mainland. Follow the old National highway along the coast to the Corinth Canal and then to your seaside hotel in Isthmia. 49km, 30 miles

Day 2: Nafplio

Today's cycling takes you to three remarkable ancient sites: Corinth, Nemea and Mycenae. The ruins seen today in Corinth date from the Roman era where St. Paul preached. You will look forward to stopping at Nemea as it is one of the four cities in the ancient world that held athletic games (also Olympia, Isthmia and Delphi). The highlight is Mycenae, a World Heritage Site, home of King Agamemnon who launched the Trojan War. End the day at Nafplio, the prettiest city in the Peloponnese. 82.70 km, 51 miles

Day 3: Nafplio

Today's highlight is cycling to the 3rd century BC Epidavros Theatre, a World Heritage Site with impeccable acoustics. Stand on the last tier to hear a whisper from the stage. Back in Nafplio don't fail to climb the 999 steps to the Palamidi, the formidable 17th century Venetian fortress. 58.50 km, 36.30 miles

Day 4: Vytina

Today is all about climbing. The first mountain is "bald," no trees, which permits a panoramic view of a series of distant mountains reminiscent of sea waves. After lunch in Tripoli, you climb into the heart of Arcadia where the landscape is verdant and the villages so charming. Vytina is a vibrant little town known for its fine local cheese and honey. 93 km, 57.70 miles

Day 5: Olympia

The exciting feature of today's ride is a long descent hugging the Lousios Gorge. From a high of 4356 feet, 1328 meters in Vytina you descend to Olympia at 125 feet 38 meters. The ride ends cycling past the Ancient Olympia stadium, the ruins lying within a discus throw of your bike route. Tour the grounds and its stellar museum. 52.80 km, 32.80 miles

Day 6: Lampeia

If you didn't have time to tour Ancient Olympia yesterday you can do so this morning because Lampei is less than a four hour ride. Lampeia is a true mountain village with no bank, no post office, no pharmacy, but it does have a guesthouse and the residents hang out at several cafes and the Balcony taverna. No tourists! 42.25 km, 26 miles Add 8 km, 5 miles for a side detour to the marvelous Foloji Oak Forest.

Day 7: Kalavrita

You're in the middle of the Peloponnese, up in the mountains, but riding a ridge so it is basically flat almost the entire ride, except for the last ten miles when you face a steep ascent for about ten miles. Before tackling that climb, best to stop at the natural phenomena known as Cave of the Lakes, a series of underwater lakes inside a cave. 74.50 km, 46 miles

Day 8: Departure to central Athens or Athens Airport

The longest cycling day is the last day of the tour, from Kalavrita to Loutraki. But don't fret, it is mostly downhill and all flat hugging the Corinth Gulf sea coast biking eastward towards Athens. End the ride at the glorious Loutraki Bay with its expansive beach and seaside fish tavernas. From here we pick you up and transfer you to central Athens. 112.50 km, 70 miles to Loutraki or 72.50 km, 45 miles to Xylokastro

Day 8 Logistics

We meet you in Loutraki for a transfer back to central Athens as part of your tour price. Alternatively, for an extra 80 euros, we can meet you in Xylokastro which shaves some mileage off your ride so you bike only 72.50 km, 45 miles If you have an early morning flight the next day, for an extra 80 euros, we can transfer you from Loutraki to Athens Airport to overnight either at the Holiday Inn (20 minutes shuttle to airport) or the Sofitel (walk across the street to terminals).
